Preface

Dear friends and colleagues,

We are proud and glad to welcome all of you to FALK Symposium 180, which is held for the first time in Japan. Inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) is a chronic intestinal disorder of unknown etiology. The theme of this meeting is "IBD 2011: Progress and Future for Lifelong Management". In recent years, IBD therapeutics have been dramatically changed by the appearance of the biologics. It also raises us a new mission to maintain long-term remission resulting in avoiding the disability and to manage adverse effects carefully.

We are also glad that basic researchers and clinical experts of IBD in Asian countries will join us. IBD has their highest prevalence in Western industrialized countries of Europe and North America. However, as you know, the accumulative numbers of IBD patients have been increasing in Japan and other Asian countries. Therefore, we will also focus on exchange between Western countries and Asian IBD experts in this meeting.

We hope this meeting will contribute to further development of IBD management and stimulate Asian IBD experts. We look forward to see you in Tokyo.
